69%	Revenue from top 10 brands
122	Models drive 80% of sales

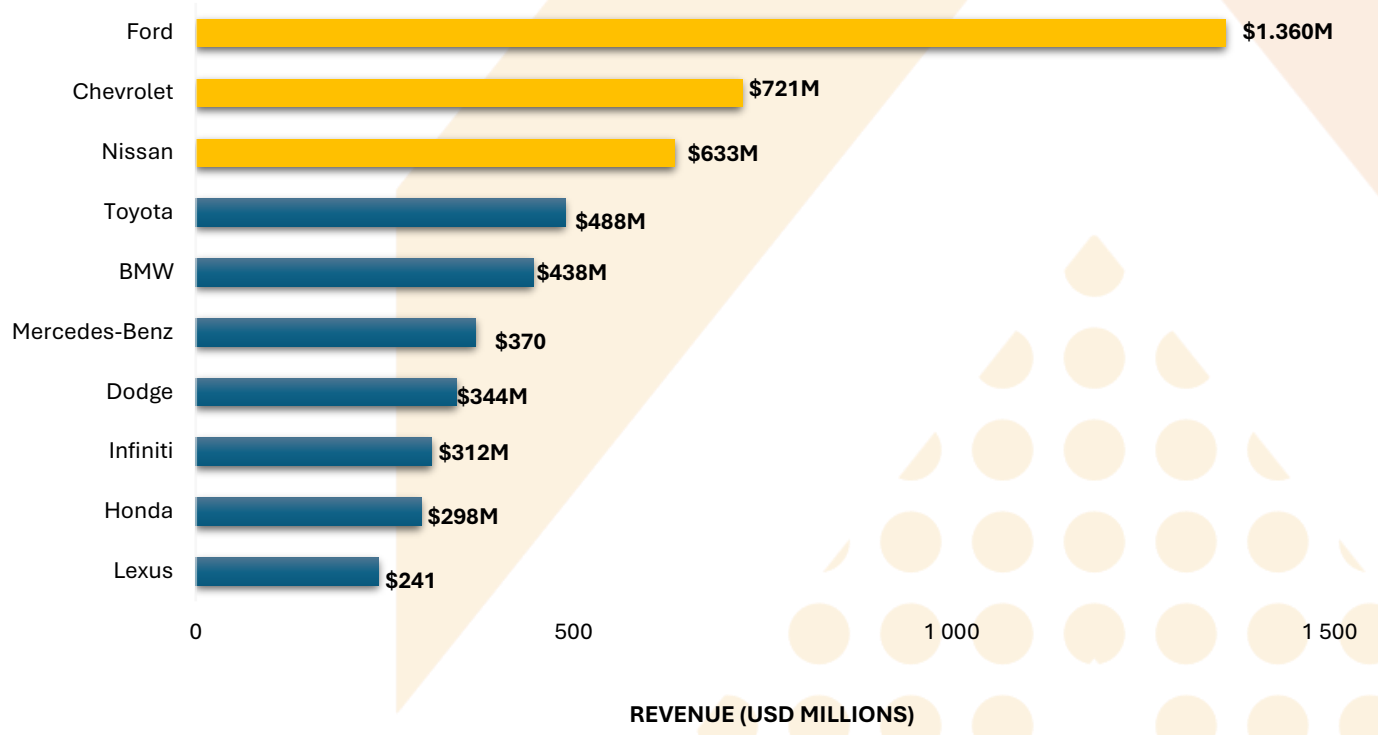
The Headline

Revenue is highly concentrated. Just 122 of 973 models about 13% of the catalogue generate 80% of all revenue. Meanwhile, 611 earn under $1M each.

There is a clear opportunity to consolidate the long tail and double down on proven winners.

Ford, Chevrolet & Nissan lead the pack

Top Brands By Revenue



WHAT IT MEANS

Ford alone = $1.36B

- Ford captures 18% of total revenue — nearly 2× the next brand.
- Top 5 brands deliver 48% of revenue.
- Top 10 deliver 69%, leaving 86 smaller brands fighting for the rest.
- Negotiate deeper volume terms with Ford, Chevy, Nissan & Toyota first.

HERO PRODUCTS

$1.60B

= 21% of total revenue from 10 models

- The Ford F-150 is the single biggest revenue driver in the entire portfolio.
- Ford holds 6 of the top 10 model slots — a brand-within-a-brand effect.
- Mid-size sedans (Altima, Fusion, Camry, 3 Series) remain core volume drivers.
- Protect inventory depth on these SKUs; stock-outs here cost the most.

Sedans dominate, SUVs are the growth lane

Sedans & passenger cars

Still the volume backbone — but a maturing segment.

28%

SUVs & crossovers

The clear growth opportunity. Push inventory & marketing here.

9%

Pickup trucks

Concentrated in F-150 & Silverado — high $/unit.

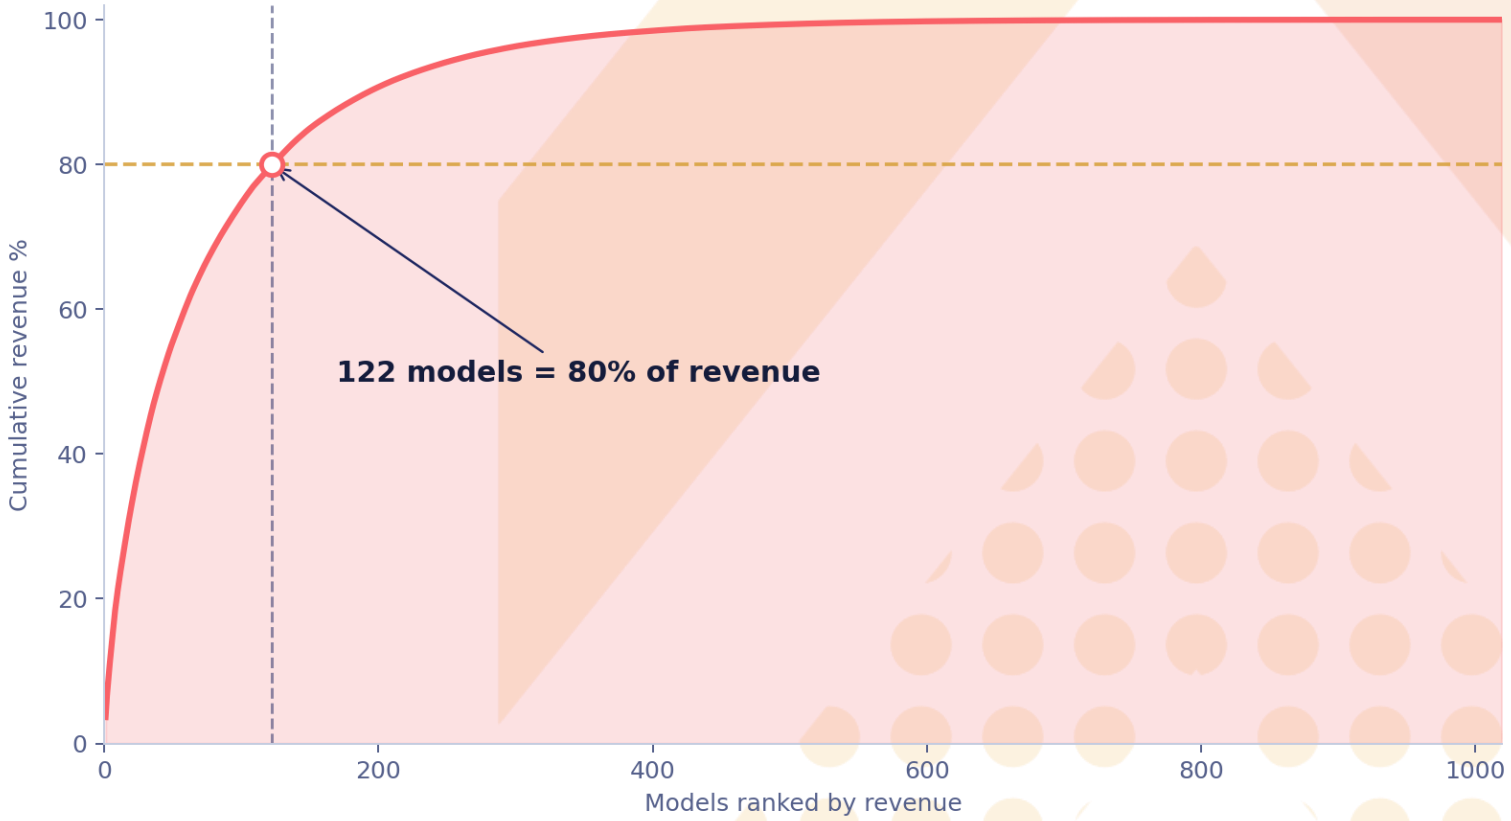
6%

Vans + sports

Niche demand. Keep lean inventory; do not over-stock.

The 80/20 rule

Inventory Optimization



THE PROBLEM

851 models

compete for just 20% of revenue.

- Carrying cost on slow-movers ties up working capital.
- Showroom & lot space is finite — every laggard SKU displaces a potential winner.
- Sales reps lose focus when the catalog is too wide.

Five Moves For The Next Two Quarters

Recommendations

Double down on ford	Ford = 18% of revenue and 6 of top 10 models. Negotiate volume rebates and secure priority allocation on F-150, Escape, Fusion & Explorer,
Grow the SUV lane	SUVs already deliver 28% of revenue and the segment is expanding. Reallocate ~15% of sedan floor space to crossovers (Escape, RAV4, CR-V, Equinox).
Trim the long tail	Phase out or special-order the ~500 models earning under $500k. Free up capital and showroom space for proven winners.
Premium brand push	BMW, Mercedes & Lexus together = ~14% of revenue with high $/unit. Add a dedicated premium specialist at top-3 dealerships.
Hero-product marketing	Build always-on campaigns around the top 10 models. They already convert — amplify what's working before testing new bets.
